Sub: Transportation codes for coaches

It is found that in different records Railways are using slightly varying transportation codes for different types of coaches. Although in most cases the meaning is understood, this situation creates difficulty in Electronic Data Processing. It is therefore, necessary that uniform and complete codes for different types of coaches should be used by all concerned.

A standard list of transportation codes for different types of coaches that exist today is enclosed for being uniformly followed by all concerned.

This supersedes all previous guidelines on the subject.
